Sharing History to Promote Community
August 4, 2022

Our Summer 2022 exhibit, In the Saratoga Style: Potato Chips and Their Regional Folklore, opened. Alan Richer, known as "Toga Chip Guy" (togachipguy.com), generously collaborated with the museum to make a portion of his collection accessible to the public. Thank you to our curators, Anne Clothier and Fred Sober. Thank you to the over 50 people who joined us for the opening.

Now it's your turn to see the new exhibition at the Saratoga County History Center, In the Saratoga Style: Chips and Their Regional Folklore. The exhibit explores the many stories that claimed to explain the story behind the snack, from dissatisfied customers to kitchen incidents. The exhibition is open to the public from Thursday to Sunday, from 1pm to 5pm. The complimentary exhibit, a "Century of Ice Cream," celebrates the centennial of Stewart's Shops, the famous company born in Saratoga County. In addition, our exhibitions on Black experiences in Saratoga County, 1750-1950, and County Life in Photos are open. The exhibits are free, although donations are still appreciated.

The Saratoga County History Center at Brookside Museum is pleased to sponsor a presentation by Professor Myra B. Armstead of Bard College entitled "From Slavery to Freedom: Blacks in Saratoga from the Colonial Period through Gradual Manumission." Dr. Armstead has a deep understanding of African-American social and cultural life and is well known for her first book, Lord, Please Don't Take Me in August a comparative study of black life in the resort communities of Saratoga Springs, NY, and Newport, RI during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

Her presentation will be held at the Dyer-Phelps Memorial AME Zion Church, 122 Crescent St. in Saratoga Springs on Saturday, September 10 at 10:30 am and is based on research supported by a collaboration between the Organization of American Historians and the National Parks Service. "Dr. Armstead's research is part of an effort to focus on the diversity of the actors in the drama of our nation's founding as we prepare for the 250th anniversary of the American Revolution," said Sean Kelleher, Vice President of the History Center and Saratoga Town Historian.

Prior to 1791, Saratoga County was a part of Albany County, and African captives were brought into the area to work as enslaved laborers on lands and in businesses owned by the Anglo-Dutch settler population. "This talk will focus on slavery and slaveholding, mainly from 1702 to 1805, on the Saratoga Patent lands owned by the Schuyler family in Old Saratoga," said Dr. Armstead. It will also cover the period between 1799 and 1827 when statewide gradual manumission occurred and the impact of this emancipation scheme in the county.

The Saratoga History Center recently opened an exhibit entitled "Black Experiences in Saratoga County 1750-1950," which can be viewed at Brookside Museum in Ballston Spa from Thursday to Sunday 1 - 5pm through November. "We are excited to welcome Myra Armstead back to Saratoga Springs. Since her original research trips when she interviewed many members of our community for her book, she has continued to participate in local events over the years," said Mary Ann Fitzgerald, Saratoga Springs City Historian.

Dr. Myra Young Armstead is a tenured senior faculty member in the History Department at Bard College, where she has taught for 36-plus years, and she holds an endowed chair. She received her doctorate in History from the University of Chicago, where she interned under the late Dr. John Hope Franklin and concentrated in three fields—U.S. urban history, U.S. diplomatic history, and African colonial history. She holds a Masters in International Relations with a concentration in African Affairs from the University of Chicago and a Bachelors from Cornell University, where she majored in Government.

The Dyer-Phelps Memorial AME Zion congregation, organized in 1862, is the oldest African- American church in Saratoga Springs. The church, which was located for many years on Maple Avenue before relocating to its new edifice on Crescent Street in 1975, is led by Rev. Michael Bell.

Seating is limited. Please pre-register for this event at <https://brooksidemuseum.org/>

Black Experiences in Saratoga County 1750 - 1950

New additions to the exhibit include The prestigious Scripser Award, awarded by the University of Southern California and other artifacts related to Solomon Northup,

The Brookside Museum is open Thursday to Sunday from 1pm to 5pm. You will find it at 6 Charlton Street in Ballston Spa, NY 12020. Entry is free and donations are acceptable.

SCHC
Saratoga County History Center

Dear Friend,

The last two years at the Saratoga County History Center have been exciting. We have increased membership, grown our collections, added new exhibits, and are in the process of completing major projects to rehabilitate our building at Brookside. We've been able to accomplish all of this because of your continued support, and we are incredibly grateful.

As we grow and change for the better, we will be implementing a new membership renewal process beginning September 1, 2022. As current members, each year, you received a membership renewal on a rolling basis depending on when you initially became a member. Starting September 1, all members will reset as we try to make the renewal process easier for you and SCHC. If you are a new or existing member who joined or renewed after March 1, 2022, your membership will roll over to 2023, and your membership will be valid until September 2023.

Starting August 15, if you have not renewed or joined since March 1, 2022, you will start receiving renewal letters in the mail. The SCHC is able to do what we do because of your financial contributions - and we thank you. Additionally, you may have heard that we've revamped our membership to include perks for each membership level, which are listed below. These new membership levels and perks can be used throughout the year as you come and visit the museum. When renewing your membership, you will also have the option to set up a recurring donation throughout the year.

If you are receiving this email and you are not a member yet, please click here to learn more about the incredible opportunities you have to become a member.

Thank you again for your continued support, and we hope to see you at our next event!

News from the herb garden...

This morning there were non-human footprints in the culinary bed! Our “resident” deer dined last night. Sorrel nibbled to the ground for an appetizer, the biggest hollyhock leaves and potato blossoms for the main course, and violets for dessert. We’ve opted for a compromise. After all, deer were here long before the colonists. So they are welcome to munch on the violets we’ve left growing along the edges of the gravel paths. The garden snails and Japanese beetles are a different story; they are voracious invaders. With apologies, they are removed from the garden.

The garden's most unusual plant—the perennial Egyptian walking onion—is in the culinary bed, and it is taking its annual stroll! When bulblets form on the top of a tall, hollow stem many times larger than a chive, their weight bends them to the ground, and voila, the bulblets take root. Egyptian walking onions are a heritage onion, a cross between the common onion and Welsh onion, and were introduced from Europe around 1800.

Last fall, the horseradish, a magnet for garden snails, was excavated at great effort from the center of the culinary bed. We had removed every little bit of pungent root, we thought. No sprouts appeared this spring and three bronze fennel were planted in its place. The darker color is an attractive contrast to the predominant green of surrounding plants. Well, the horseradish was just gathering its resolve. It wasn't long before horseradish leaves began to intermingle with the fennel. How could we resolve the problem without disturbing the fennel? The solution: cut horseradish leaves as they surface in hopes of starving the roots. Only time will tell who will win the battle.
